visions finished at slight declines.

The wheat market started weak and luth amounted to 557 cars against 223 be on the corresponding day of the year before. The total receipts at all the principal primary markets were 297,-660 bushels. The shipments of flour from the prinmary western markets omounted to the equivalent of 319,990 bushels. The exports of wheat and flour from Atlantic ports amounted to 367,900 bushels. The French advance was generally reported to have been checked and the fear of crop damage there seems to have been allayed. Berlin was, however, strong and from to to marks higher. The world's shipments to importing countries were much under the setimated weekly requirements of the latter. The opening price for May was 54½654% cents and immediately at 54½ cents. It ruled firm for a time, alternated between 54½ cents buyers, and the same price, sell-ers, but recovered to 54% cents and held around that during the greater part of the forenoon. It weakened a little after 12 olclock and dropped by degrees until it reached 54½,654% cents with a sale at 54 cents. It was web-bling around the lowest price of the day's range, finally ending at 54% cents Corn was steady at the opening and firm during the greater part of the day. Cash corn was likewise a shade firmer and in fair demand at the advance. Today's receipts were twenty-seven cars against the estimates made yesterday of 156, but for tomorrow seventy-five cars are estimated, and the latter prospective falling off in receipts was the chief cause of the general firmness of the market. The amount of business done in the pit was small. May opened at 44% cents, dropped to 44% cents, rose to 45 cents on the announcement of the small estimated receipts for tomorrow those the small estimated receipts for tomorrow those to the small estimated receipts for tomorrow the small estimated receipts for the small estimated receipts

Business in the oats market was some what improved. A weaker feeling was prominent, influenced by quite liberat offerings by Patton Bros., and Eartlett-Frazier. Sales, however, were few and scattered. May sold from 23% cents to 23% %% cents, down to 23 cents and Closed at 29% cents bid.

There was an absence of demand for provisions and rather more for sale than was noticeable on the previous day with the result that prices lost the slight rain they road to the state of the sale than gain they made yesterday and went back to where they left off on Saturday afternoon. The day's decline in May amounted to 7½ cents and about 2½ cents each in lard and ribs. Hog receipts today were 30,000

New York, March 5 .- Only a moderate volume of business was transacted on the stock exchange today. At the opening speculation was active, and higher figures were made as a rule, the market continuing to advance for fully three quarters of an hour. Cotton Oil preferred sold up 2 per cent, to 6715 per Chicago, March 5.—About 4,000 head constituted the day's supply of cattle. There was a small supply and it was all bought up at about steady prices. Scarcely anything in the steer line sold below $1.00, very ordinary stuff bringing $1.250 head fraction. Chicago Gas was a notable exception, breaking 14 per cent on Mayor Hopkins signing the franchises of the start today. The northwestern receipts at Minneapolis and Dute. cent; Tobacco 214 per cent, to 92% per steers were quoted around 2.60, and there were sales of rubbish at 3.5001.75. Texas cattle were in good request and were stoady.

The hog market was strong. Packers bought freely and the shipping demand was more than usually good. The fresh arrivals were confined to about 3.00 head, and the supply was easily handled. It was disposed of on a basis of 34.004.50 for lots averaging from 20 to 30 pounds. 2.504.35 for lots averaging from 20 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 20 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 20 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 20 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 30 pounds, and 32.854.25 for lots averaging from 30 to 40 pounds—32.554.35 for was a renewal of the purchasing move-ment and a corresponding appreciation in values, the granger shares advanc-ing %%% per cent, General Electric and Distilling % per cent; Louisville and Nashville and Deleware and Lack-awanna % per cent; Missouri Pacific, Cottonseed Oil, Great Northern pre-ferred and Tobacco I per cent; Northern ferred and Tobacco 1 per cent; North-ern Pacific preferred 11's per cent; Long Island Traction 13's per cent, and Pittsburg and Western preferred 1½ per enet. sands of Patriots. The Lincoln homestead stands on the northeast corner of Eighth and Jackson streets in Springfield, III. Mr. Lincoln bought it in 1846. It was then a story and a half house but subsequently raised to two stories. It is a frame structure and contains twelve rooms. Mr. Lincoln lived there fifteen years; in fact, until he departed for Washington on the 12th of February, 1861, to take the presidential chair.

A family by the name of Tilton occupied the house during the war, and in those four years sixty-five thousand people called to see the home of the president. For eighteen years after the war closed the house passed through different hands and it was closed to the public. For a long time it was unoccupied. In November, 1883, Capt. O. H. Oldroyd rented the house and threw its doors open to visitors. In 1887 Rob- the first bite. The horse is fat, sleek, ert Lincoln deeded the house to the | and youthful in his movements, and state. Capt. Oldroyd was the custodian | Jacobs expects to keep him on the pie for a long time, but was removed by the democratic administration, his successor being Herman Hofferkamp. Capt. Oldsoyd is now the custodian of the house in which Mr. Lincoln died in Washington and has taken with him the grandest collection of Lincoln elies in the world. Oldsoyd spent a lifetime getting these mementos together. The state could well afford to have bought the collection and set spart a fund for its preservation. The house, says the Chicago Tribane, is open to the public now and is virtually just as Mr. Lincoln left it. Some repapering and repairing has been done, but the proportions in the house are in no way changed. A year or so ago the state officials had the house photographed and had accurate measurements made of the edifice that it might be rebuilt in case of fire.

Hundreds of thousands of people have visited this house, men and women representing every civillated nation of the earth, and some of the barbarous ago John Philip Sousa, then the leader of the Marine band, gave a matinee in Springfield. At the conclusion of the performance he took his band, sixtyfive pieces in all, over to the Lincoln mansion. After appropriate music every member of this famous body of musicians made his signature on the register book. The occasion attracted an immense crowd, and numerous and prominent speeches were made by citizens of note. Sousa held a special train two hours to accomplish this, he and his men regarding it a slight testimonial of the respect in which they held hir. Lincoln's memory.

LO AS A LABORER.

An Officer of Thirty Years' Frontier Experience Gives Ilis Views.

A man who has been on the frontier for thirty years and has put in a big part of that time fighting Indians, is Capt. P. H. Ray, of the regular army, now in charge of the Shoshone and Arapahoe agency in Wyoming. Capt. Ray has practical views touching the seen, during the recent high cold winds. Indian problem, based on his long contact with the red man. He believes that his ears, a woolen comforter wound the Indian can be made a self-supporting and useful citizen, and all that is hands, and was hauling in a package of needed is to furnish him a sufficient in- tobacco and a letter with all the concentive towork for a living, the same as his pale-face brother.

money to be made out of them. For that reason every obstacle is thrown in he way and all sorts of misrepresentations made by these parties, who dread to see their occupation gone. During all my experience in the west I have rever known an administration that has dealt with the Indians in as clean and conscientions a way as the present. The secretary of the interior has, without any partisan bias, done in every instance his best to promote the interests of the tribes and the government, and, from my own observation, I think that he has thus far been very successful." Five Millions for a Husband.

When Lady Margaret Grosvenor, third surviving daughter of the duke of Westminster, gave her hand to Prince Adolphus of Teck, the other day, says the Philadelphia Times, her father gave with it a marriage portion of five mil-lion dollars. The bride, the daughter of probably the richest man in the world, is rather a good-looking girl whose persociality, to say nothing of such a fabulous dot, would seem to entitle her to something better in the way of a husband than the impecunious young lanexception, breaking 14 per cent on cer whose name she now bears. The prince is an officer in the seventeenth lancers, the full uniform of which regiment he wore when married. The wedding presents numbered about five hundred, and included enough jewelry to start a store. The newly wedded pair will in future be known as "their serene highnesses the prince and princess of Teck."

He Understood Womankind. It is related by Tit-Bits that a certain man was recently very sad because his wife had gone on a visit, which she would not shorten in spite of his apfused to tell her. The scheme worked admirably. In less than a week she was home to find out what it was that had been going on that her husband did not want her to know about

A PIE-EATING HORSE

He Has Been Known to Refuse Oats for

Pie and Is Fat and Sicek.
Leonard Jacobs, a pie peddler of Ansonia, Conn., has one of the most remarkable horses in Connecticut. Other towns have boasted of horses that chew tobacco, chew gum or drink beer, but Jacobs' horse will eat pie, says a local exchange. The horse is twenty-three years old. Jecobs' pies come from New Haven, packed in cases, and in trans-portation some of them generally get broken and cannot be sold. One day Jacobs threw a broken pie on the ground near the horse's head. The animal smelled of it, touched it with his tongue, lapped it up and ate it with relish. Then Jacobs began to feed ples to the horse. The horse soon got to like them, and would even refuse oats when pie was to be had. The habit has grown on him, until now, when Jacobs says "pie" to him, the horse will turn his head and wink expectantly. He has a decided preference for mines pie, and the more raisins and currents and cider there are the better he is pleased. Apple ple is a great favorite with him. Most bakers put grated nutmeg into the apple pie, and this doesn't seem to agree with the equine taste. Pumpkin pie he likes and cranberry tarts are an especial delight. Peach, apricot, berry and prune pies are noceptable, but unless the prunes are stoned he will not touch prune pie after cart until he is long past the age when most horses are turned out to grass for the rest of their days or are carted to the horse cemetery by the side of the murky waters of the Naugatuck river.

MAKING THE BEST OF IT.

An Invalided Fisherman's Ingenious De vice for Continuing His Sport. A cheerful example of ingenuity in "making the best of it" is to be seen at an apartment house on Spruce street. It takes the form of a long, light fishing rod fixed to one of the window frames of a room on the third story in such a way that the line depending from it dangles over the sidewalk a trific less than seven feet from the ground, says the New York Sun.

At the hook end of the line there is fixed a light wire basket and at the butt end of the pole there sits an invalid, chained to his chair by paralysis of the legs. In his active days the invalid was a great fisherman, and, as his wife is old and feeble, too, it has been ones, too, for that matter. Some years | the old fisherman's fancy to rig up this pole and set it for bites. They come in the shape of the morning and evening papers, his mail, messages from old cronies who know his whim, and small parcels from the neighboring tradesmen, who also know his fancy.

When the old Waltonian is wheeled in his chair to the window in the morning his first glance is down at the basket to see if there is any bite. There nearly always is, and then the window is opened, no matter what the weather may be, the line is wound in on the reel until it reaches the end ring on the pole, and then the "fish" is dexterously landed.

Sometimes, so the neighbors say, the old fisherman makes believe to "play" with the catch; and when, one day, a friend loaded down the basket with a shad that really required a good deal of skill to hand in, the invalid fisherman was so overjoyed when he did land it that he could do nothing but smile for the rest of the day. The cold spell has bothered him a little, but when last he had a heavy for cap pulled down over around his neck, fur gauntlets on his centrated interest of a true angler having it out with a gamy fish.
